Annual National Conference on Addiction Psychology

7- 8 September, 2017

Dear friends,

It gives us an immense pleasure to invite you to the Annual National Conference on Addiction Psychology being organized by National Drug Dependence Treatment Center (NDDTC), All India Institute of Medical Sciences (AIIMS), New Delhi from 7- 8 September, 2017.

Addictive disorders contribute to a significant proportion of the global burden of disease. Psychosocial factors have been identified to play a key role in context of addictive disorders. In fact, the current conceptualisation of addictive disorders describes these as an end result of interaction of diverse biological and psychosocial factors. These psychosocial factors play an important role in aetiopathogenesis as well as management of addictive disorders. Psychological interventions form a cornerstone of treatment of patients with addictive disorders.

There is a felt need to disseminate the learning and recent advances in the area of addiction psychology to the various stakeholders. The current understanding and knowledge of addiction psychology needs to be made available to the trainee mental health professionals as well as those engaged in clinical care delivery and/or research. Also, there is a need to offer a platform that can be used by the clinicians, academicians and researchers to share their views and deliberate upon the controversies and recent advances in the field of addiction psychology. Such a platform is expected to strengthen the learning as well as enhance capacity for clinical care delivery and research among those working in area of addictive disorders. This is likely to translate into better care for patients with addictive disorders. Trainee psychologists and practitioners are the individuals who are in the learning phase of their careers. Their sensitization about the psychological aspects of addiction can help in shaping their attitudes towards addictive disorders and may germinate interest in treating these patients with empathy and using effective psychological interventions. Moreover, it is likely to add to their research acumen in the field of addiction psychology.

The proposed conference on Addiction Psychology is aimed at achieving the aforementioned objectives.

We look forward to see you at NDDTC!
